VEREAL DESCRIPTION:

This modelled censer fragment is composed of a tan-orange gritty paste with both micaceous and white inclusions. The design on the fragment is ambiguous. It is formed of wavy lines .6 cm wide. It is hard to determine whether to look at the raised design, or the image inside the lines. The lines are separate and not connected on this fragment. Also, they are not arranged in a symmetrical pattern. The back of the shard thickens at the top of the fragment. The back is also darkened by burning, presumably. There is no slip, paint, or intentional brush marking. The design is not crude, but smooth.
